

ClearEdge Executive Shares Entrepreneurial Spirit and Message with Future Technology Leaders

ClearEdge Marketing President and Founder Leslie Vickrey is scheduled to meet with several Chicago technology interns today at i.c.stars' High Tea event, encouraging the group to follow their instincts, not be afraid to take risks and always have a solid mentor to guide them in their quest to find success in the professional world of Information Technology (IT).

i.c.stars provides IT career programs and services that strengthen the leadership potential of Chicago's inner city young adults. High Tea is an innovative volunteer opportunity i.c.stars offers to allow senior executives to share their personal career journeys with participants, as well as discuss current challenges and strategies for success in the IT field today.

"I'm excited about the opportunity to meet this year's i.c.stars interns and tell them about things they can expect in the IT industry and business landscape today." Vickrey commented. "I know the i.c.stars program gives interns a great base to start their technology careers with, and I wish the group much success in the future."

Learn more about the program at www.icstars.org.